Quote: "No matter what group you coach, your swimmers are coming from a previous experience and going forward to a new one. How do you bring them together to learn what your team has prioritized as target skills and set them up for success at the next level? We'll be talking about the flow of technique, training and key values we'd like to instill at each level of growth as we take our turns guiding these athletes through a successful swimming career."

Guest Presenters

Megan Oesting is a former USA National team swimmer, UCLA national championship water polo player, and Masters swimming national champion who owns the Eastern Iowa Swim Federation, their Endless Pools lessons program, and MOST Swim Tech. Her MySwimEars are used all over the world fundamentally changing the way coaching is done in the sport of swimming. In her time in Iowa, her athletes have set and reset over 100 state records, posted over 30 swims in the All Time Top 100 Age Group rankings, half of which were in the top 10 all time, including 1 National Age Group Record. She was the 2019 Southern Zone Head Coach and the ASCA Age Group Coach of the year. Her purpose in coaching is to empower people to build trust in themselves and their ability to create the experiences they want to have in life. Megan is a certified Newfield Life Coach, helping clients of all ages reach their highest potential in their life goals.

Coach Jay Chambers is a Manager of Performance Development for USA Swimming with 41 years of coaching experience at the Club, High School and NCAA D I levels.
